2 INFORMATION LENDONATE COLLECTS ABOUT YOU

2.1 INFORMATION PROVIDED BY YOU

We collect personal and financial information that you provide to us while you use the site via desktop or mobile devices. The information collected depends on the type of user you are and the type of services you have consented for us to provide to you. Most of our collection of your information occurs during the site registration process or the Borrower loan application process. Below are examples of activities where you provide information to us.

All website browsers – including those who are not registered users:

- can access and review any public information available on the website without providing personal information.
- can submit an inquiry via email or our contact form. We will receive names and email addresses of individuals who contact us with questions about LENDonate, our lending/borrowing operations or to provide feedback about our products and services. We'll only use this information to respond directly to the individual's question.

New Borrowers or Lenders:

- Registration Process - specific information must be supplied when users register on the site. The requirements for registration are different for Borrowers and Lenders but basic information collected may include:
 - Your name
 - Your email address
 - Your home address and phone number
 - Your job title (Borrowers only)
 - Your date of birth (Lenders only)
- Lender Verification Process – additional information must be supplied if lenders want to participate in investment activities. Information may include:
 - Your Social Security number (Lenders only)
 - Consent of Lender's Agreement
 - Bank account information (Collected via integration with third party payment processor)

Registered Borrowers:

- Loan Application Process – When a registered Borrower is applying for a loan, most of the information collected is related to the Nonprofit Borrower (such as EIN, organization name, address, etc) which is publicly available information. However, other data (e.g. financial statements) may need to be collected to meet underwriting and legal requirements and/or other terms or requirements to properly service the loan.

The following personal information may be collected from Borrower’s during the loan application process:

- Related to key organization members – borrowers may be asked to submit member resumes which may include names, addresses, phone number, education history.
- Related to a Guarantor of a loan - if a Guarantor is specified in the loan application – name, address, phone number, financial information such as a letter listing assets, brokerage or bank account statement or previous credit/loan history will be collected from the Guarantor in order to process the application

Verified Lenders and Borrowers:

- Loan Discussion Forums – Verified Lenders and Borrowers (owners of the loan) can submit questions or comments via loan discussion forums. We capture the users name, comments, timestamp and preferences regarding notifications when new submissions are posted or their submission has been replied to.
- User Account Profile – Verified Lenders can upload photos. All verified users can update their personal information within their account profile, which contains information shared during registration and other user questions. Not all questions are required to use the platform but answers can help tailor information that is shared to the user.

For Lenders who register on our platform:

We will collect information from third parties to verify your identity.

For Verified Lenders who would like to participate in lending activities:

For Borrowers who apply for a loan on our platform:

We will collect information from third parties to verify the identity of the registered Borrower and the nonprofit organization and to determine the nonprofit organization's eligibility for credit, perform analysis, and assess risks related to the potential loan.
